bm176 One Laptop per Child

 [bm176 \[27:46m\]: Hide Player | Download](#)

During 23C3 I had the good fortune of running into SJ who works for the Green Machine project. Which has been renamed the OLPC project, but I still like calling it the Green Machine because that is what it is... a 100 dollar laptop that had been designed specifically for the harshest conditions in the most remote places in the world. It is an issue close to any internet content creator's heart... anyone who wants to see more of the world having access to computers and personal publishing online. If you're intested in learning more, after the interview perhaps consult their website:
